

Thousands of Free Worksheets On KidsKnowIt.com

Fill in the Blanks Geography

1. A important gas found on the Earth is known as _____.
2. Ozone is a molecule made up of three oxygen _____.
3. Ozone gas is mainly found in a layer of the atmosphere commonly referred to as the ozone _____.
4. Ozone has the unique ability to absorb the Sun's _____ radiation.
5. Water _____ is an important gas to consider when studying the atmosphere.
6. Some parts of the Earth are prone to high _____ levels, while other locations have very dry air.
7. A lot of what we call _____ is caused by water vapor.
8. Water vapor has a significant impact on _____.
9. As water _____ heat is carried from the Earth's surface into the atmosphere.
10. As rain falls down, heat can be transferred from the atmosphere back to the _____.
11. The sky is blue the smallest particulates are by coincidence the same length as the _____ of blue light.
12. Because blue light has a wave length that is the same size as the _____ in the air, this light is scattered in every direction.
13. This blue light bounces from particulate to particulate until it eventually reaches your eyes, so no matter what direction you look in the sky, it appears to be _____.